Error Analysis: Questions 32-33

Your concerns about errors in Q32 and Q33 are valid. These errors relate to the "exact replication of text" principle in IELTS Reading fill-in-the-blank questions.

Q32: Your Answer: low quality vs. Correct Answer: low-quality

- Analysis: Your answer is semantically correct, but the missing hyphen is critical. In IELTS, if the original text uses the compound adjective low-quality, your answer must replicate it exactly, including the hyphen. A minor detail like this can lead to lost marks.
- Mental Rule: Always check for hyphens or specific formatting in compound adjectives.

Q33: Your Answer: none of THC vs. Correct Answer: (virtually) no THC

- Analysis: While none of THC and (virtually) no THC are very similar in meaning, IELTS requires exact words from the text. If the text uses no THC, you must use it. None of THC is a paraphrased answer, which is not allowed in fill-in-the-blank questions.
- Mental Rule: Stick to the exact wording of the text, avoiding paraphrasing.

Conclusion: Your errors stem from not adhering strictly to the text, not from a lack of comprehension.

Core Weakness Analysis

After analyzing your errors, your primary challenge lies in quickly identifying paragraph main ideas and author viewpoints, particularly in the following question types:

Matching Headings (Q14, Q17, Q18 in Part 2)

- Issue: Errors suggest you may focus on specific keywords or details rather than the paragraph's core argument.
- Diagnosis: You struggle to distinguish the main idea from supporting details.
- Strategy: Use the First-Last Sentence Method: Read the first and last sentence of each paragraph to predict the main idea, then scan the middle for confirmation.

Matching Features (Q27-Q30 in Part 3)

- Issue: Errors indicate difficulty in pinpointing specific viewpoints or sources.
- Diagnosis:
 - Inaccurate positioning: You find the name/source but miss the context.
 - Failure to recognize synonym paraphrasing: You miss connections between the question and text.
- Strategy: Create a Viewpoint Map: Before answering, mark all names/sources (e.g., F, A, E, B, D) in the text to build a reference map. Then, locate answers directly from these points.

Blind Spot: You excel at understanding literal sentence meanings (evident in strong fill-in-the-blank performance) but struggle with extracting implied meanings or main arguments quickly.
